Ardmore High School History

Ardmore High School started in 1915 from 5 acres of land donated (cost - $5) by Austin, Childers, and Boyd who were Ardmore, TN residents. From 1915 -1916, donations (labor, material, and money) from area residents helped construct the two story brick high school building. The building contained a study hall and classrooms on the first floor and a stage on the second floor. The school opened its doors to students in 1917 with Mr. J.T. Blacksher as the first principal. The High School was accredited in 1927.

As a part of the Limestone County School system, Ardmore High serves students in the North East corner of Limestone County. It is a K-12 school located on Hwy 251 in Ardmore, Alabama. The current student body is comprised of approximately 1,300 students. The school mascot is the Tiger.

The city of Ardmore is a unique town which is situated across two states, Alabama and Tennessee, and four counties, Limestone (AL), Madison (AL), Giles (TN), and Lincoln (TN). This makes city, county, and state government a very interesting task. To help the town maintain a local school system, the State of Alabama allows city residents living on the Tennessee side to attend Ardmore High School (with a yearly tuition).

Zelma Parker had moved to Ardmore in (1904 her family following later) to teach at the local school. She remembers the installation of the town's first telephone four years later in a little store owned by Lonnie Ivy. Only a handful of residents had telephones of their own, so Ivy would take messages for others and pass them along.

Miss Zelma recalls taking her students on a tour of the telephone company in 1928, located now in an upstairs office near the railroad depot. Bula Troxler was operator at the new magneto switchboard installed the year before. For thirty years Ardmore remained a small, rural hamlet, suspended in time, and things changed very little, including its telephone service.

By the mid-1950s the antiquated system was serving about 230 customers over 20 miles of open wire. the operation was owned by the Merrill family. Besides this business, Fount Merrill worked as a TVA engineer. In August 1955 he officially incorporated Ardmore Telephone Company and became one of the first Tennessee companies to apply for a loan from the Rural Electrification Administration. With the funds Merrill installed 90 miles of new copper cable and finally replaced the aged magneto switchboard with a modern dial office in a new commercial building.

Four investors bought the Ardmore Telephone Company in 1958. The three principal partners were K.W. Rogers, Jr., Lee O. Brayton, Jr., and David Nunn. The fourth partner in the Ardmore venture was a Mr. Edmundson of Cornersville. He served as vice president and general manager until the 1970s, then sold his interest to his three co-investors.

Besides the Ardmore purchase in 1958, the four men bought Minor Hill Telephone Company serving 185 customers; Boonshill Telephone Company and its 127 customers; and the Dellrose Telephone Company with 108 customers. Boonshill and Dellrose were combined to form the McBurg exchange of Ardmore Telephone Company.

In addition to their Tennessee properties, the men also owned the Elkmont and New Market Telephone Companies in Alabama, acquired in the late 1950s.

Rogers, Brayton, and Nunn had been deeply involved in the telephone business in Tennessee. The year before they bought Ardmore, Rogers and Brayton each acquired one-sixth interest in Friendship Telephone Company from Max Earnheart. Friendship Telephone evolved into Crockett Telephone Company and was eventually bought by Telephone Electronics Corporation of Bay Springs, Mississippi. Rogers, Brayton and Nunn also invested in Cities Telephone Company (later, United Telephone Company) at the request of Elmer Bivens. He had held one-third interest in Friendship Telephone when Rogers and Brayton bought into it.

Ardmore and the several systems owned by Rogers, Brayton, Nunn, and Edmundson were common battery systems. The new management secured loan money from the Rural Electrification administration in the late 1950s and early 1960s to convert them to central dial offices.

Between 1970 and 1976 each exchange was rebuilt, buried cable was installed, and one-party service was established system-wide. The company now served 2,600 customers.

Today there are more than 8,000 in four counties of Tennessee and Alabama. All central offices are digital, connected with 100 miles of fiber optic cable. While King Rogers and Lee Brayton are now dead, their families along with David Nunn retain ownership of Ardmore Telephone Company. Its 27 employees remain dedicated to providing the rural areas of both states with the latest in telephone technology and advanced service.

This web site is intended to help members of the First Baptist Church of Ardmore stay abreast of church news and activities. It is also intended to introduce our church to people in the community interested in exploring what we have to offer in the way of Christian fellowship.

The First Baptist Church at Ardmore welcomes visitors. Join us in the warmth of Christian fellowship, the glow of Christ's radiant love, and the power of God's Presence; and share with us the challenge of leading Christ-like lives.

If you have no church home, we invite you to make our church your church.

Ardmore is a small community, close-knit and caring. As Christians, we pray for additions to our family of faith, and we will surely count your coming as a blessing - and we hope you will too.

We try to serve the Lord by serving the community and to serve the community by serving the Lord. We hope this page helps you stay informed about what we're doing and makes it easier for you to participate as we try to carry on the Lord's work.

In the window to the left, you will find a 'Table of Contents' to guide you through this site. Every week, we will publish The Ardmore First Baptist Church Bulletin, and we will maintain an online edition of The Wellspring, our monthly church newsletter. You will also find a current Church Calendar here.
